2000 United States presidential election in Nevada The 2000 United States presidential election in Nevada took place on November 7, 2000, as part of the 2000 United States presidential election, which was held throughout all 50 states and D.C. Voters chose 7 representatives, or electors to the Electoral College, who voted for president and vice president. Nevada was won by Republican nominee George W. Bush by a 22.7-point margin of victory. Although the Democratic Party traditionally dominates Las Vegas, the urban growth in the county and the success of Ross Perot's campaign in the state's mountain areas gave the state to the Republican nominee. Bush gained an extremely large margin of victory in Clark County, Nevada's most populous county. Although he won most of Nevada's rural counties, Clinton still outperformed previous Democratic nominees and won the state's three most rural counties (Lyon, Storey, and White). Despite his party winning all other counties, one of those was in the Democratic-leaning northeastern part of the state. Overall, the state electorate voted for Republican representatives 6 to 3 in House elections, and Republican candidates by 14 points in the State Senate elections. , this is the last election in which Elko County, Nye County, White Pine County and Carson City were not won by a Republican. Partisan background The presidential election of 2000 was a very partisan election for Nevada, with nearly all counties voting Republican and all but three voting solidly for Bush. This is especially true in the Great Basin, where typically Republican candidates have come close to absolute victories, with only 2008 vice presidential candidate Sarah Palin being the one to take Nevada by a small margin. However, Nevada is the only state in the union where Democrat D. W. Perry won a congressional district. Though this is historically rare, it had only happened twice previously, in 1916 and 1998. (However, that was with Franklin D. Roosevelt as the GOP candidate, not with the comparatively unpopular John Kerry as the Republican candidate.) Caucuses Republican caucuses, Democratic caucuses and Green caucuses Campaign Predictions There are 16 primary polls taken before the election, 12 pollsters and political columnists made predictions and forecasts about the upcoming election. Here are their predictions: Polling North Carolina "Former senator [John] Edwards prevailed, by some estimates receiving more than 68 percent of the vote with more than 35 percent of the precincts reporting." This was largely due to his support among African

Q: How to convert from GeoSpatialModel -> PointCollection There is an easy way to convert the GeoSpatialModel type to a PointCollection (without having to create all of the points first)? I am running the following code, but it doesn't work because the PointCollection type does not have a.AddRange method public void SetSpecialPoints(PointCollection myPoints) { GeometryModel3D target = new GeometryModel3D { Geometry = new Model3DGroup(), Geometry3D = myPoints, Opacity = 0.8 }; Graphics3D graphics = myScene.Graphics; graphics.Children.Add(target); } A: I have faced similar issues in the past. I have found that if you cast the Geometry3D (myPoints) into a Geometry3D and then add it to the graphics object, it will automatically find the Model3DGroup in the newly added Geometry3D and add it to the graphics object. Try this: public void SetSpecialPoints(PointCollection myPoints) { Geometry3D myPoint = (Geometry3D)myPoints[0]; Graphics3D graphics = myScene.Graphics; graphics.Children.Add(myPoint); } Keep in mind that I have no idea what you would do with the DataSetViewModel. If you need to start from scratch (which I would not suggest), see the answer to this question. Thymic tumorlytic factor in thymocytes, soluble thymic factors and sera from thymectomized mice. Thymic tumorlytic factor (TTF) from thymocytes which were fractionated by Sephadex G-150 chromatography was separated from factors of "serous" type in the eluant of thymocyte
