When Bush said Trump's generosity would be wasted on him, Trump said, "I can make that happen. I can give you the money." Bush then said he would spend the money "any way I can to help the party," and added, "I would do it too." This is not the first time Trump has used his wealth to fund Donald Trump. From early on in his campaign, he promised to dole out money to all of his supporters. Trump noted, "We have a lot of very rich people, many of them have said to me, 'Give us some money, and we'll go and spend it.' And I've said, 'No, that's all right.' I don't care. I'm not going to care. They have plenty of money. Trump offered some of the same reasoning when he called for Bernie Sanders to release his tax returns.PRIMROSE LAKE VILLAGE, Mass. — An article in the New York Post, written by Lauryn "Diddy" Smith, accuses Duran Duran of allegedly turning up the heat on their leading man, Nick Rhodes, with the help of a sex ed class — and then asking her to get Nick's number on the sly. Speaking to The Daily Beast, Smith said that while attending a school presentation on "Gender Roles and Gender Equals," the pop-rock band also commissioned another presentation, from the activist Aaliyah LaBeija, on "Consent and Sexual Communication." Smith, now a year out of school, explained that, yes, it's very possible that on-camera romance would be discussed. "I don't know if they were teaching these things to all students, but I was pretty sure it was this one class, since the school started a
