Greetings, people of the lands between! The not-so-veiled and quite disruptive conflict that's currently raging is taking a toll on the Lands Between. Players, who both wish to battle their hardships and strive to become the greatest of all, can now join the ranks of lords known as El'den Lords by taking on the role of a fallen Elden Lord and resolve the mysteries of the Lands Between. Let's begin! The Elden Lords, and the chaos they've created, have laid waste to the land. The first sighting of the Tarnished has been reported in the Lands Between

In a land laden with magic, danger, and creatures newly awakened by the Ray of Light, the formation of a Faction has begun to rise in the lands between. A group of humans, driven to avenge their race, is increasing their armies and preparing to take control of the ancient Land of Temsus. In addition, a dark being, known as the Tarnished, has been awakening in the lands between. The Tarnished, the fearsome entity that destroyed all lands in the past, is making war against the humans to take back the magic of the Ray of Light. And people are dying in the battle. Players will rise in their class and guild, to become an Elden Lord and battle against the three evil forces and to keep the Land of Temsus.

The following is an introduction to a world filled with strong feelings, dangerous monsters, and unique adventure. We know that you have been waiting for this day, and we are prepared with a rich adventure!

Olive Ortiz, play writer, illustrator, developer, and composer is a self-taught web game developer at AAAI in Japan. His most popular web games have sold more than twenty-five thousand copies. After a furious fight against the humans, he became an NPC lord, A Tarnished Lord.

The definitive fantasy action RPG is back with more promise, polish, and greatness than ever before. There will be some minor changes coming in the next update, but the features you know and love will be there! 80% - InRPG (www.inrpg.com) The quest to save the world from oncoming chaos is a personal journey for each of your party members, and the game emphasizes this by giving you control over the decisions that shape your characters' stories. The game offers a plethora of exciting gameplay features while retaining the deep RPG structure which has made fantasy RPGs great for so long. The graphics are beautiful and modern, and although the online game takes up a large chunk of your time, it's well worth it. The soundtrack is quite good, and there are a few unlockable tracks. The only real downside to this game is the difficulty spike around level five or so, which at first is unforgivable. I'm guessing it's not meant to be a challenge as such, but maybe it should have been worded better. It's just a little too much of a pain to accomplish what you're there for. If you're looking for a fairly active game, with a fairly sizable dynamic battlefield, you should try the game out. InRPG constantly invests in the free updates, and they seem to be genuinely concerned about the issues that arise, so you can expect to see new developments as and when they come. GAMEPLAY: The Free Roam Map is a very large map that has the map divided into 12 different zones, each with their own layout, enemies, and dungeons, as well as various sidequests. Each zone is randomly generated, which makes it very difficult to predict which dungeons you will be visiting next. As you move around, monsters will attack you and attack points will be generated. When the attack points reach a certain number, the dungeon entrances will open, and you will be sent into the dungeon. Since each character has their own attacks and items, each dungeon has its own style of gameplay. If you're a melee attack character, you will be expected to use weapons and flail at everything, and your weapons will increase the amount of damage you will deal in the next attack. If you're a ranged attack character, you will be expected to use magic spells and then attack, and your weapons will not provide extra damage bff6bb2d33

Supporting other Betas in the Facebook Annals and Twitter Beta World were the plan all along!

From the very start, we truly believed that there had to be several versions of the game running in parallel to get the beta level of testing that we desired. The development team's post-release restructuring and other assets that have become available has allowed us to spread these processes to other projects, as well. We are currently working on expanding upon this plan to let YOU, our most dedicated fans, join the crew sooner than we would have had previously. Most importantly, we never, ever considered removing the current project from you until now. Please know that we are NOT keeping the current project from new development, however! If we don't go ahead now, the project will naturally only be a shadow and not follow suit at all. We are as determined as ever to make this happen, and we know you are too.

With those disclaimers being made, we have decided to schedule beta testing for the much anticipated second major content build (the "Eden" expansion) next week. In addition to inviting everyone already approved into that group, we will be working with @Jon67 and have created a new official Facebook Annals for you to chat and collaborate with all of us players. On our Twitter, you'll be able to see us and other official players' progress, so we ask that you follow us! Thank you once more for being our Beta testers!

I hope you are all looking forward to the beta testing of

At 6:15 am, using a rifle, an accomplice killed two men and wounded two others before fleeing the scene of the crime. Police found the vehicle carrying the shooters and other three gunmen. How do they know which one of the shooters pulled the trigger? The 'Tag' is used to indicate the type of bullet that was used. 9 mm or.45 ACP are the most common calibers. In this case, we used a 9mm Taser (The police also used a Taser, or a stun gun that sends an electric pulse into a person in order to subdue them. They are quite common for police officers and they are also often used as a way to render a victim unconscious prior to restraint or arrest. Calibers are the standards used to identify the size of bullets fired from a handgun. They are usually gauged in thousandths of an inch (sometimes they're called mils). They are denominated in both American and British systems. In the American system, the divisions are in thousandths of an inch. The bullet recovered from one of the crime scenes is typical of this calibre (caliber) but it's a bit larger than average. Because it's a "large" bullet, it's not used for this calibre (caliber), and is called a "TKO" (Technologically Killed Officer). We can identify the type and calibre of the weapon from the markings on the bullet. The caliber number is the distance (in thousandths of an inch) of the bullet from the tip of the barrel. The weapon rifling groove (also called lands and grooves) that directs the bullet is the rear face of the rifling. The rifling is visible under a high powered light microscope. The rifling on the bullet is very impressed, because it is made by a special tool. There are two types of rifling—plain (rifling) or reamed (rifling). While a gun barrel is hot, the rifling is permanently etched into the barrel. The rifling distributes the spin on the bullet and improves the accuracy of the bullet. Note the calibre number is one of the most distinctive part of a bullet. In some calibres, the bullets may have the same number. It is not required that you write down the caliber numbers if you encounter them in a criminal investigation. In this case, there are two calibres that are common, 9mm and.45 ACP. We can now assume that the weapon used
